

Charis Ammon: Unquiet

May 23-30, 2020, not cancelled fair platform.

In the nine works in this presentation, there is a consistent sense of passing time, a shifting of what's known, and things left behind. The works in Charis Ammon's Unquiet describe barriers and tracks, noticed by the artist on her daily walks.

"Some of the work shows change without your ability to access or affect that change. Some images show a barrier of time between you and tracks left behind. I love finding evidence of a narrative with no "agent of change" present. I see parallels between these spaces and how I feel as a person in the world. All around me, I am informed of change and shifting tides. I can see so much, but feel a barrier between my ability to interact with the change or the movers of change. There is some beauty and some sorrow in this kind of realization.
